Investigative Services Division

December 2025 Updates:

December 2025

Investigative Services assisted the Department of Homeland security along with State of Connecticut Major Crime with a child pornography case that stemmed from a residence in Waterford. Though the suspect is in custody and resides in a different town, it was learned that potential victims were residing in Waterford at the time.

Investigative Services completed numerous undercover retail assignments in the month of December with the holiday month resulting in more shoppers. Though Investigative Services conducts many undercover retail patrols throughout the year, the holiday season is always a focus with the increase of people in our community.

Detective Carroll attended a NLCFMA Battery Fire Training. This was a one day training that is a requirement in order for Detective Carroll to retain his certification as a Fire Investigator.

December 2025 Investigations:

Detective Carroll, while conducting an undercover retail assignment, observed a male and female subject taking part in a larceny from Home Depot. After a motor vehicle stop in which the female subject ran from the vehicle and was later apprehended, additional drug charges were added.

Detective Bonkowski was assigned three untimely death investigations. These cases are still under investigation awaiting Medical Examiner results but all are not suspicious in nature.

Investigator Bushwack was assigned two weapons compliance cases in the month of December. Both cases stemmed from Domestic Violence arrests in which the state then mandates all firearms be retained away from the residence for safe keeping.

Investigative Services assisted patrol in completing a Risk Warrant and a Risk Protection Warrant on a male who legally possessed firearms after being transported to the hospital after having a medical episode in which his suitability to retain his firearms was deemed inappropriate. These warrants were successfully obtained by the court and the firearms were willingly handed over by the subject and his family.

Detective O'Connell assisted patrol with a $10,000 larceny from F.W. Webb in which fake invoices were created from a business in Danbury and then a "taxi" service was hired to acquire the merchandise from the fake invoices resulting in the fraud. This case is still under investigation.

Detective Bonkowski was assigned a child abuse case from a residence in Waterford. This originated from a Department of Children and Families report of suspected child abuse. This case will most likely result in an arrest warrant being applied for. The children are no longer residing in the home at this time.

Investigative Services assisted patrol with an elderly scam of approximately $30,000. The victim purchased numerous Apple gift cards over an extended period of time for a scammer posing as an ex girlfriend. This case is still under investigation.

Investigative Services assisted patrol with car breaks into vehicles parked outside Pure Barre on RTE 85. This case has become more complex with victims information being used throughout numerous jurisdictions.

Investigative Services assisted Montville with a report of a juvenile sexual assault that was believed to have occurred in Waterford but was later determined to have occurred in Montville.
